Mile Marker #11: My Community Impact

Your community is bigger than you think, and you're already part of how it works.

This module asked you to notice the communities you're already part of, and to look at how each one works, including where you have influence. This Mile Marker asks you to put that noticing into words, then name the four skills your STAR(T) Stories will show.

Keep it short and honest. You're not writing a report on your community involvement. You're capturing what you started thinking through in this module, so you can carry it forward.

Two ways to use this handout. It matches the Mile Marker #11 assignment in Blackboard. Print it and fill it in by hand, or type in the boxes below and save a PDF. Either way, upload the photo, scan, or PDF to the assignment. You can also type your answers in Blackboard instead.

NAME _____ DATE _____

Part I: Your community impact

QUESTION 1

Where You Show Up

Think back to the community you worked with in this module, or pick another one if it fits better now. Name it, and describe your role in it. How do you already show up or contribute, even in small, everyday ways?

A strong answer names one real community, describes your role, and gives a specific example of how you already show up.*

Example: "My job. I work the front desk at a campus office. I'm usually the first person someone talks to, so I try to make sure people feel heard even when I can't fix their problem myself."

Community word bank: family · friends · roommates · classmates · coworkers · neighbors · online groups or gaming communities · faith or cultural groups · customer service or caregiving roles · teams, clubs, or interest groups

My community _____ My role in it _____

How I already show up or contribute, even in small ways

Your Influence, Named

Using what you practiced in this module (noticing the people, rules, and influence in a system), describe one specific way you've made, or could make, a positive difference in that community. It doesn't have to be big. Small and real is exactly right.

A strong answer describes one specific action and the difference it makes, connected to something you noticed about how the community works.*

Example: "I noticed new students at the front desk often don't know they can ask for a callback instead of waiting on hold. I started mentioning it. It's a small thing, but it's saved people a lot of frustration."

Impact word bank: being reliable · supporting others · encouraging someone · helping someone understand something · practicing patience · speaking up in discussions · leading in small ways · being a good roommate · showing up consistently · noticing what others miss

One specific way I've made, or could make, a difference

QUESTION 3

Looking Ahead

As your circles grow (new classes, jobs, programs, organizations), what's one way you want to show up more intentionally?

A strong answer names one intention, connects it to a specific strength or value, and names a first step you could take.*

- Connect it to a strength or value you identified in Module 7.
- Name one realistic first step you could take.

Example: "I want to actually join something instead of just attending, probably something connected to my program. I value being useful to people, so I'd want it to be something where that matters. First step: ask my program advisor which student groups are active."

One way I want to show up more intentionally

The Module 7 strength or value it connects to

Part II: Your four STAR(T) skills

QUESTION 4

Choose Your Stories

Look back through your Mile Markers and your life this semester. For each of your four STAR(T) skills, name the experience you plan to tell, in a phrase or a sentence.

A strong answer names a real, specific experience for each skill, uses a different experience for each, and explains why you chose your fourth skill.*

Example: "Professionalism: the week my car broke down and I still got every assignment in by arranging rides and emailing my instructor ahead of time."

Adaptability & Leadership (assigned): my experience

Professionalism (assigned): my experience

Knowledge Application (assigned): my experience

My choice: the skill

My experience, and in two or three sentences, why I chose this skill
