Mile Marker #2: My Support Team

No one completes a journey alone.

This Mile Marker is about identifying the people and resources around you, and thinking about how to use them intentionally.

You'll come back to this reflection when you build your capstone project.

Two ways to use this handout. It matches the Mile Marker #2 assignment in Blackboard. Print it and fill it in by hand, or type in the boxes below and save a PDF. Either way, upload the photo, scan, or PDF to the assignment. You can also type your answers in Blackboard instead.

QUESTION 1

Who are three people at OCTC who can help you succeed this semester?

Start with your Success Coach. Then add two more people you've connected with here, or want to. At least two of your three should be people who work at OCTC: an instructor, an advisor, a tutor, a peer mentor, or someone in an office like TRIO, Counseling, or the Library. A classmate can be your third. For each person, give their name if you know it. If you don't yet, say who they are and where you'd find them.

A strong answer names three people at OCTC, at least two who work here, including your Success Coach by name, and explains how each one can help. Naming a person, not just an office, is what makes this real.*

Person (name, or who they are)	Where they are at OCTC	How they can help you
Success Coach:

Who else is in your corner? (optional) Family, friends, coworkers, mentors: who else is cheering you on?

QUESTION 2

What are two specific ways you'll use your support network intentionally this semester?

Describe two specific strategies. Not just "I'll reach out when I need help," but when, how, and for what. Which connections do you want to strengthen?

A strong answer describes two specific ways you'll use your network, each with when, how, and for what you'll reach out. It shows the difference between knowing support exists and actually using it.*

Consider the Counseling Center, Accessibility Services, Advising, your Success Coach, the Library, the Teaching & Learning Center (tutoring), TRIO, Student Life and clubs, Career Services, or Financial Aid. Choose one that feels relevant to your goals or situation right now, and explain why.

A strong answer names a resource you haven't used yet, explains what it offers and how it connects to your goals, and names one concrete next step for getting there.*
