Mile Marker #7: My Strengths Snapshot

Who you are at your best, and what that means for where you're headed.

You've taken the HIGH5 Strengths Assessment and the Values Card Sort. This Mile Marker asks you to do something with what you found: not just list your results, but reflect on what they mean for how you learn, how you work with others, and where you might be headed.

There are no good or bad strengths. There's only honest and not-so-honest reflection. Be real with yourself. That's what earns full credit.

Two ways to use this handout. It matches the Mile Marker #7 assignment in Blackboard. Print it and fill it in by hand, or type in the boxes below and save a PDF. Either way, upload the photo, scan, or PDF to the assignment. You can also type your answers in Blackboard instead.

NAME _____ DATE _____

QUESTION 1

Your Top 5 HIGH5 Strengths

List your Top 5 strengths exactly as the assessment reports them, spelling and capitalization included.

A strong answer lists all five, in order, exactly as reported.*

#1 _____ #2 _____ #3 _____ #4 _____ #5 _____

QUESTION 2

Accuracy Reflection

What do your results say about how you think, feel, or work?

A strong answer explains your strengths in plain language, names the one that fits best and why, and is honest about what surprised you.*

- In your own everyday words, what does each of your strengths mean for how you think and work?
- Which strength feels most accurate, and why does it fit?
- Did anything surprise you or feel off? What do you make of that?
- Which result do you want to understand better?

QUESTION 3

Strengths in Action: Academics

List three specific ways you can use your strengths to support your learning this semester. Be concrete: not "study more," but how your particular strengths change how you approach studying, class, or assignments.

A strong answer names three concrete ways, each tied to a specific strength, and describes how one strength shows up with others.*

Way 3

Then pick one strength: how does it show up when you work with classmates or on a team?

QUESTION 4

Strengths and Values in Action: Career Direction

How might your strengths and values connect to a future field, role, or work environment?

A strong answer names one or two work environments that fit your strengths and connects at least one of your values to the direction you're exploring.*

- What kind of work environment might suit how you naturally operate?
- Are there roles or fields where your top strengths would be a natural fit?
- Which of your top values connects to the direction you're exploring, and how?

QUESTION 5

One Blind Spot Worth Watching

Every strength has an overuse pattern, something that works against you when it goes too far. Name one blind spot connected to your strengths.

A strong answer names one real blind spot, describes what it looks like in your life, and gives one strategy for managing it.*

- What does this blind spot look like when it shows up?
- What's one situation where you'll need to watch for it this semester?
- What's one thing you'll do when you notice it?

QUESTION 6

Strengths-Based Goal

Complete this sentence: "One way I will use my strengths in the next few weeks is..."

A strong answer is specific, names a strength, and describes something you could actually do in the next few weeks.*
